Introduction

This Cookie Policy explains what cookies are, and how and why they may be stored on and accessed from your device when you view the Site. You should read this Cookie Policy alongside our Privacy Policy and Terms of Use.

What are cookies?

Cookies are text files containing a small amount of data, usually a unique string of letters and numbers. They are commonly used throughout the Internet and are stored on, and accessed from, your device when you visit a website (including this Site). This allows the website to recognise your visit and differentiate you from other users of the website.

The term ‘cookies’ also includes technologies that operate in a similar way to traditional web cookies, such as pixels or tags. A pixel or tag is a snippet of code that enables cookies to be stored on your device. They allow the owner of the website to identify a user’s browser as they navigate different websites.

You can find out more information about cookies and similar technologies on the Information Commissioner’s Officer (ICO) website by clicking here.
